Career Development Workshop

Tools & Techniques

Incorporating insights from Strong Interest Inventory® and MBTI®

Public Program: Contact for Dates

In-House Programs: By Arrangement

Career Development

This workshop has been designed to help further develop and improve the career development services that you and your organization provide.

Information will also be provided to help you navigate the vast and confusing array of psychometric and diagnostic tools available to assist individuals in making effective career decisions.

We will focus primarily on methods for understanding and assessing career preferences and strengths. Using real life case studies, we will identify practical strategies for selecting appropriate tools and helping individuals to integrate the results into a simple and effective plan for career development.

Who Should Attend?

School and college counsellors, teachers, career guidance counsellors, H.R. professionals, and others involved in assisting individuals with career development and planning.

Workshop Content

- A six step model of the career counselling process
- Selecting appropriate assessment tools
- Self-profiling in career strengths, preferences and interest
- Applying career development tools & techniques
- The goal setting process and client ownership
- Measuring the impact of your interventions
- Insights from Strong Interest Inventory® and MBTI® psychological instruments.

What You Receive With Enrolment

- A comprehensive tool-kit of career planning tools and techniques.
- On-line profiling in Strong
- Strong® & MBTI® Career Report
- A copy of Introduction to Type and Career
- Morning and afternoon teas and lunch

What You Will Get Out of This Program

- Practical strategies for supporting clients in career decision making
- Hands-on practice through client case studies
- Some guiding principles to use when selecting assessment tools
- Awareness of the range and types of assessment tools available
- Insights into how to apply MBTI® and Strong Interest Inventory® results to career development
