About BarOn EQ-i®

Emotional Intelligence is now recognised as a key factor underpinning successful individuals, teams, leaders and organisations. Emotional intelligence is a measure of a person's emotional, personal, social and coping dimensions of intelligence. Best of all, emotional intelligence can be improved through training initiatives aimed at enhancing social and emotional skills.

Based on 20 years of research by Dr. Reuven Bar-On and applied with over 110,000 individuals worldwide, the BarOn EQ-i® (Self-report) and EQ-360™ (Multi-rater feedback) are the first scientifically validated and most widely used measures of emotional intelligence.

Who Should Attend?

Human Resource professionals, learning & development practitioners, psychologists, educationalists, counsellors, line managers, management and leadership development consultants. There are no pre-requisites for attending this workshop.

The EQ-i® Certification Course

The EQ-i® certification involves a 3-day course. The course equips graduates to administer and apply the instrument. Key areas covered in the course are:

- Emotional intelligence history & theory
- Development and psychometric properties of the BarOn EQ-i®
- Administering the EQ-i®
- Interpreting the EQ-i® and case examples
- Providing feedback with the EQ-i®
- Using the EQ-i® individual & team reports
- Ethical application of EQ-i® in workplace settings

The EQ-360™ Certification Course

Accreditation for the EQ-360™ involves a one-day workshop which covers the following key areas:

- Administration of the EQ-360™
- Psychometric properties and interpretation of the EQ-360™
- Client feedback techniques for the EQ-360™
- Case analysis of EQ-360™ reports - leadership & coaching
- Ethical and professional use of EQ-360™ in organizations
